LOCALS.

—Marriage license was issued yesterday to John Marion and Mary Klein, both of Sedalia.

—The infant child of Mr and Mrs. Thos. Jefferson of East Sedalia, died yesterday, aged two days.

—A woman who pretends to laugh at love is like the child who sings at night when he is afraid.—J. J. Rousseau.

—A little son of Chas. Hoffman the East Sedalia grocer, is reported to be seriously ill, with little hope for his recovery.

—Mr. Geo. W. Castle, the prosecuting attorney of Lawrence county, Ky., arrived in the city yesterday morning. He is a brother of the late Mrs. Julia Castle Holmes.

—The thermometer which fell to twelve degrees below zero yesterday morning rose about 2 p. m. to thirteen degrees above. The sun shown part of the day and the decrease of the wind rendered it comparatively pleasant out of doors.

—A ladies handsome gold watch was raffled off at Shrinker's saloon last night. The lucky winner proved to be Wm. Miller, who was not present, but a friend who threw the dice for him on the last throw turned up forty-one, much to the chagrin of S. F. Rose, who had held the lead for a long time with forty.

—Thos. Ord a young English miner was at the station house last night, sick and penniless. The reporter interviewed him and is satisfied he is an honest and worthy representative of his fraternity and deserving kind treatment and aid. A ticket to Montserrat, would place him where he would find kind friends and help.

—Last night, after the arrest of King alias Manzy, Chief Bennett made a search for his accomplice in the attack upon Mr. Phelan, and succeeded in unearthing him at Werderman's. He proved to be his old companion, the chum dasher Whitney. He claimed to have been only endeavoring to get Manzy home, and ridiculous as the story was, he was allowed to go on it.

—Ex-Mayor Frank Craycroft, the gentlemanly and efficient general agent of the McCormick Agricultural Implement company, has fitted up elegant quarters on the lower floor of the O'Neil building, corner of Second and Osage and will hereafter be found there. He has rented the entire floor now occupied by Mr. Thomas hardware store and will fill it with implements, next spring.

—The sheriff, of Randolph county, while here after Dee Dyer, stated that previous to the murder of Carroll, a dwelling house had been burglarized in Moberly, of a lot of clothing and other valuables contained in a trunk, and claimed to recognize the handsome black suit worn by Dyer as a portion of the missing goods, and stated that Dyer would be held on the charge of burglary in addition to that of killing Carroll.

—In the Cowan-Johnson murder trial at Joplin, the defence filed an application for continuance on the ground of the absence of important witnesses, but as the State admitted the evidence which the aforesaid witnesses were expected to introduce, the court overruled the motion for continuance and ordered preparations for the trial. The sheriff was ordered to impel a jury of 40 men to appear on Thursday morning. The witnesses were dismissed with instructions to reappear on Monday morning, when it is supposed that the jury will have been selected and everything be in readiness for hearing the testimony.

The Banker's Daughter.

The J. F. Cressen company played the above thrilling society drama, matinee and night, yesterday at Springer's Opera house to a fair audience. The play is intensely thrilling and emotional and of a most elevated character. The performance is such that the greatest moralist of the day could witness it, and be benefited thereby. The company are conscientious artists, and their intelligent audience showed their appreciation and delight by hearty, frequent and generous applause. It affords as much pleasure to endorse the company as first class in every respect. We regret that want of space forbids further and individual mention.—Columbus Times.

PERSONAL.

—A. P. Espenscheid returned last night from Appleton City where he had been called to adjust a loss on a dwelling house for the Continental Insurance Co. of N. Y.

—John G. Allen, so long and favorably known as a leading merchant in this city, but now doing business in Wichita, Kansas, is in the city visiting friends. He is looking remarkably well and speaks highly of his new home as a business point.

—Hon. W. D. Steele arrived in the city last night to spend Sunday at home. His many friends will congratulate him on his appointment as chairman of the third committee of the house—criminal jurisprudence, which is published in the telegraphic columns of the BAZOO this morning.

—George R. Keister, mayor of Tipton, was in the city yesterday on business. He is an aspirant for United States revenue collector of the Sixth district and is backed by some of the best of its citizens. He is young, energetic and competent and would, without doubt, fill the position efficiently and creditably if appointed.

HOTEL MITCHELL.

Grand Opening at Nevada Last Thursday Evening.

The opening of the Hotel Mitchell at Nevada last Thursday night was one of the most notable events that has occurred in the state for some time. The hotel, which was fully described in last Sunday's issue of this paper is a noble and beautiful structure and its proprietor, Capt. Harry Mitchell, has long been known as the prince of hosts.

The hotel was brilliantly illuminated and artistically decorated in parlors, reception rooms and dining halls. Capt. and Mrs. Mitchell assisted by Capt. and Mrs. H. C. Moore, received their guests and made them royally welcome.

MRS. MITCHELL.

wore a handsome costume of terra cotta silk and velvet combined, ornaments of diamonds and pearls, corsage bouquet of natural flowers. Mrs. H. C. Moore wore a costume of shell pink surah satin with an overdress of black mercurio lace, ornaments of diamonds and Roman gold, corsage bouquet of bon silene roses.

The Knights of Pythias band discoursed fine music during the interval of dancing and the dance music was furnished by the Gem city band assisted by Prof. Clell Cassidy, of Appleton City, and Mr. Charles Covell, of Rich Hill. At midnight a banquet befitting the occasion, was served on very tastefully arranged tables. The "Amaz'ia club, consisting of a number of the society ladies of the city, volunteered their services as waiters for the occasion.

The young ladies wore tasteful white caps and aprons and under the able supervision of Mrs. Capt. J. E. James, of Appleton City, performed their duties in a most admirable manner.

DURING THE EVENING

the Uniform Knights of Pythias, of which Capt. Mitchell is Sir Knight commander, presented through Sir Knight Horace Blanton in an appropriately worded speech, an elegant silver tea service consisting of five pieces. The engraving was very nicely done and the inscription was as follows: "Presented to Sir Knight Commander Harry Mitchell, by Nevada Division No. 8, Uniform rank K, of P on the occasion of the opening of Hotel Mitchell, Jan. 15th, 1885."

There were probably two hundred and fifty guests present, among them from abroad: Mr. and Mrs. Dennis, of hotel Talmage, Rich Hill, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Besty, Rich Hill; Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Brazler and daughter, Butler; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Nance, Sedalia; Col. and Mrs. P. J. Carmody, Merchants' hotel, Moberly; Miss Florence Wait, of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Harkless, of Lamar and a number of prominent residents of Nevada.

In all, the hotel opening was a grand success and the BAZOO wishes it and its courtly and gentlemanly proprietor all the prosperity in the future that can be bestowed upon it.

—Mr. E. C. Palmer, North Monroeville County, Ohio, writes: "Permit me to add my unsolicited testimonial to your list. My little boy, two years old, fell from a step and struck his forehead. A large black and blue bump raised and swelled rapidly. We immediately applied St. Jacobs Oil and the swelling and discoloration disappeared. We would not be without it and have used it often with like effect."

ABOUT WOMEN.

VIEWS OF WOMEN.

—In love, as in war, a fortress that parleys is half taken.

—A fan is indispensable to a woman who can no longer blush.

—The man who can govern a woman can govern a nation.—Balzac.

—It is easier to make all Europe agree than two women.—Louis XIV.

—The mistake of many women is to return sentiment for gallantry.—Jouy.

—God created the coquette as soon as he had made the fool.—Victor Hugo.

—Woman is a foolish creature, who changes her hat as easily as her gloves.—Balzac.

—Who takes an eel by the tale or a man by her word soon finds he has nothing to prove.—Proverb.

—Rascal! That word on the lips of a woman, addressed to a too daring man, means—angel!

—How many women would laugh at the moral of their husbands if it were not the moral to weep?

—I have seen more than one woman on her honor in the clear water of diamonds.—D'Houdetot.

—We meet in society many attractive women whom we would fear to make our acquaintance.—D'Harcville.

—An asp would render its sting more venomous by dipping it into the heart of a woman.—Poincelot.

—Women swallow at one mouthful the bitter, and drink drop by drop a little more bitter.—Diderot.

—A man deceived by men went to heaven, it is a kind of revenge on men.—Bosmanoir.

A KING OF BEATS.

A Dead Beat and Tramp Who Tramps and Beats His Own Mother.

The BAZOO readers will remember the mention a few days ago of the arrest of a couple of hard characters named King and Whitney, suspected of being counterfeiters, but who were afterwards let off with fines for drunkenness, because no sufficient evidence could be obtained to warrant their being held on the other charge. Thomas King not having any funds to pay his fine, served five days on the rock pile, and at the end of that time was permitted to seek shelter at the court house until he could hear from his mother, to whom he had written, in Christian county, Illinois, for money. Yesterday he received a very affectionate letter from her accompanied by an order for $20. In the letter the mother pleaded with her son to get his property and available assets together and to come home and stay with and provide for his wife and four children who reside in that county. He departed from the station house in high feather and with many assertions of his deep sense of gratitude to Marshal Barnett for favors received and a promise to at once obey his mother's desires. It was but a few hours, however, until the greater portion of his money had been expended for budge and he was as tipsy as any old toper could desire. He had with him for a companion in his orgies another member of the tramp fraternity and a patron of the Hotel de Barnett, named Hubbell. About 4 o'clock Officer Mason, of the railroad force, appeared before Marshall Barnett with the pair and informed that functionary that he had arrested King at the instance of Hubbell, who claimed that King had on

A PAIR OF GUM OVERSHOES taken from his, Hubbell's, wife and which he refused to give up. An ominous frown overspread the countenance of the marshal as he recognized the pair.

"Do you say he stole those shoes from your wife," said he, addressing Hubbell.

"No," said Hubbell, "but they are mine and I loaned them to him and he won't give them up."

"Have you got a wife?" asked the marshal.

"No," said Hubbell.

"Sit down and take off the shoes," said Mr. Barnett, addressing King. "Ain't you ashamed of yourself to come before me in this situation after your promises and the letter and money sent you by your mother?"

King gave up the shoes and then attempted to urge the marshal out of the idea that he had been drinking, but both men were dismissed with a severe lecture and a warning that unless they left the city they would be run in and severely punished.

HUBBELL

claims to be in search of work, and has been in Sedalia about a week. He says his relatives live in the neighborhood of Greenridge, and he promised the marshal he would go there on the first train. He is about 23 or 24 years of age, tall and slim build, with anything but a prepossessing countenance, and is evidently not very ardent attached to anything requiring either great physical or great mental labor.

KING

is a man of perhaps 38 years of age, tall, coarse and evil looking, rough and abrupt in his address and evidently a very hard case, by trade he claims to be painter, but it is doubtful if he had any legitimate calling. He admitted he had a wife and four children in Christian county, Illinois, and says he came out west with a view of locating somewhere in Missouri or Kansas. He further states he had $500 with him when he started, and that about $300 of it was stolen and the rest expended on the trip. He claims to have been from home about a year, but says he has means there and that his family are amply supplied. But it is quite probable they would tell a different story could they be interviewed. Since he has been here he has sought or kept nothing but the lowest company, and when first arrested was making the rounds with Whitney, who claimed to be selling a patent churn. But whose actions indicated the public was the churn in question, and he was acting in the capacity of the dasher. If Mr. King keeps his promise and leaves the city, this may be the last time the BAZOO will have to mention him, but the probabilities are he will do nothing of the kind but remain, to sooner or later furnish a first class item by his rascalities.

Chapter II.

Which shows, though a reporter can't tell the truth, he may sometimes guess it.

"I have an item for you," said a friend of the BAZOO scribe last night as he tendered him a cigar.

"That is just what I am looking for," said the perambulator, drawing his book.

"Well, you need not get out your book, it is only a pointer, you will have to chase it up. Two men attempted to garrote Pete Phalings at Homan's stables to-night, but he was too much for them and gave them both a terrific drubbing. See him."

Homan's was soon reached, and Pete was found sitting by the fire with three friends.

"I understand you had a little matinee here to-night, Pete. Have you any objection to giving me the particulars, for the paper published for the people now on earth?" said the scribe.

"None in the world," said Pete. "Take a chair; it don't amount to much no how."

PHALING'S STORY.

About 7:30 this evening, I was sitting there where you are by the stove leaning back against the wall, taking a smoke. Homan had gone home to supper and I was alone, when two men came to the front of the stable, one of them a rough looking fellow with a two week's beard and a mustache came into the office and walked up to the stove, the other one staying outside. I thought nothing of this and the fellow came up and extended a hand each side of the stove saying "this is a cold night." "Yes," said I, "it's pretty cool."

He stood there a moment looking me in the face and then reaching over jerked the pipe from my mouth, saying:

"GIVE ME A SMOKE."

I felt kind of mad at this and said "I think the weather has not much the advantage of you as regards coolness anyhow."

"Don't you give me any of your chin music," replied my visitor. "I am a bad man and propose to run this institution awhile." Then he pushed the stove door to and said "don't you dare to open that door or I'll pulverize you."

With this I brought myself down from against the wall and attempted to get up, remarking, "I guess you won't and if you can't behave yourself I will pitch you out of the door."

With that he grabbed me by the knees and crushed me into the chair, saying, "Don't you move. I'm a daisy, I am."

I GRASPED HIS THROAT and struck him in the face. The blow staggered him and I sprang to my feet saying, "Get out of here." He went to the door and opening it said, "Come in, Joe."

With that his companion, a low heavy set fellow, with a mustache and dressed in a checked suit and soft black hat, came in. "I guess you'll not put us out by a damned sight," said the big man, "we're daisies and don't intend to go."

With that they attempted to advance upon me when I sprang to the door and pulling it back sprang again before them. Then I struck the big fellow, knocking him out of the door to the middle of the stable entry the other one came at me and

I THREW HIM OUT.

Following them into the stable. By this time the big fellow was up and came at me again. I gave him another blow knocking him out onto the pavement and by that time the little one was close to me. I struck him again when he run outside and I went out and gave the big one a few more knocks and told him to leave. When he started I saw the little fellow trying to draw something from his pocket which I took to be a pistol. Not having any arms I went back in the stable and out through a side door, where I sent a boy after a policeman. Mr. Werderman came down soon after, and, finding everything over, went up town and that was all there was in it, except both fellows were here previous to the difficulty, and the big one was trying to trade off his overcoat and the little one inquired for a farmer who had been here, but left before night. Mr. Moore, who had his team here came down soon after the difficulty and he and I took a lantern and looked around.

WE FOUND THIS KNIFE.

(showing an ugly two-blade knife, of the barlow pattern), saw the big man try to get it out of his pocket when I struck him the second time and suppose the blow knocked it from his hand before he could open it."

"I think I know who one of the men are from your description," said the scribe. "Are the police hunting them?"

"No, sir."

"Well, I guess I can find the big one anyhow before morning."

In company with one of the gentlemen, the reporter started up the street, and as they got in front of the Stairs saloon two men passed into it.

"There is your man," said the reporter, "if it is the one I suspect."

Entering the saloon they were face to face with

WITH OUR FRIEND KING.

But lo, what a change was there in his physiognomy! In short in sporting parlance he had as beautiful a head put on him as ever shown in a prize ring.

"Is that your man?"

"That is one of them, the big one."

In a very short time Mr. King was in charge of the police, who found but little of his $20 left, and on his person was the following letter heretofore mentioned.

DECATUR, ILL., Jan. 14, 1885.

"DEAR BOB—Your letter of the 10th inst, directed to your mother, was received this date, and requests me to write you this evening as she is now staying with me. I have just written to J. A. B., by her order directing him to forward to you a postoffice order for $20 and says to say to you, for God's sake to collect your property together and return to your family and take care of them as she considers that is the first duty that you owe to any person on earth. Mother and I are going to see brother Jee in about ten days as soon as I can get out of court and she wants you to write her at Joe's, Bayard, Guthrie county, Iowa. She says that from all reports she don't expect Joe to live long, as he is declining every day. I will have to close by hoping to hear from you soon and that you may recover your usual good health and return to your family. Our folks are all well. Your brother, J. H. NANCY."

He also has in his possession a number of deeds and mortgages on property in Iowa, in the name of Maczy and of his wife.

From the proprietor of the Star saloon, the reporter learned that Manzy, or King, had been put out of the place just previous to his arrest for attempting to pick pockets. So ends chapter two.

Better Than Diamonds.

And of greater value than fine gold is a great tonic and renovator like Kidney-Wort. It expels all poisonous humors from the blood, tones up the system and by acting directly on the most important organ of the body stimulates them to healthy action and restores health. It has effected many miraculous cures and for all Kidney diseases and other kindred troubles it is an invaluable remedy.

RELIGIOUS.

Busy Preparations for a Grand Revival Among the Churches.

Notwithstanding the past severe weather preparations have been actively going on during the week ended, for a vigorous awakening and general revival among the various organizations. A number of congregations have held nightly prayer services and numerous additions have been made in some instances to the church rolls. At the Y. M. C. A. rooms, daily union services have been held, which have been well attended and much interest manifested. During the coming week, revival services will be opened in regular form in some of the churches, while others will continue the prayer service. Below will be found the announcements for to-day's services and those of the coming week, so far as learned.

THE CHURCHES.

The Broadway Presbyterian church will commence a regular revival course to-morrow, of which due notice will hereafter be given. The regular services and Sunday school will be held to-day.

OHIO STREET M. E. CHURCH.

Regular services to-day, morning and evening. Evening subject, "The cumulative influence of a sinful life." The subject is a broad one and will be ably handled from a practical and illustrative standpoint, by Rev. Jones. During the week there will be evening revival services.

—Christian church will hold regular morning and evening service to-day.

—East Sedalia Baptist church will hold regular services this morning and evening.

—Episcopal church service will be held as usual to-day at the A. O. U. W. hall, corner Ohio and Seventh.

—First Presbyterian church will hold regular services this morning and evening at each evening during the week.

—German Catholic will have morning mass and evening vespers and Roman Catholic, morning mass and benediction.

—First Baptist church, corner of Fourth and Lamine streets, J. B. Fuller, pastor. Services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.

—Beginning with Monday night at 7:30 P. E. Meigs, state Sunday school evangelist, will hold a Sunday school normal institute at the Christian church.

—Congregational church, corner of Ohio and Sixth streets, Allen J. Van Wagoner, pastor, Sunday school at 9:30; church services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Rev. Dr. McCaughey will preach both morning and evening. A welcome to all.

ELSEWHERE.

Revival services were held in the M. E. church, California, Mo., by Rev. Howell, the past week up to Thursday evening, when the storm necessitated a postponement until next Wednesday. On Monday evening the text was John vii. 37; Tuesday, Acts xi. 17; on Wednesday, Jonah i. 6. Considerable interest was manifested.

Elders David Connor and R. Sneed have just recently closed a protracted meeting at Mason's school house.

Dr. Lacey preaches at the Methodist church, south, in California, to-day.

ORGANIZATIONS.

Y. M. C. A. rooms, boys' meeting at 2:15 p. m. Song service at 3 p. m. to-day. Owing to the revival meetings no regular services will be held by the association this week, unless hereafter announced.

The following communication to the Women's Benevolent association has been sent to the BAZOO for publication.

"The Woman's Benevolent association for the relief of the poor of Sedalia, is a grand and glorious work, one in which every Christian should rejoice, for I believe the angels in heaven were made to rejoice in every enterprise whose object is the amelioration as well as the elevation of suffering humanity, but, my dear sisters of the association, I hope you do not think the ladies of East Sedalia are indifferent to the claims of suffering humanity in which we should all have a deep and decided interest. But, on the contrary, we in East Sedalia are engaged in a grand and glorious enterprise, under the auspices of the railroad department of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. We have very much to encourage us, as the officials of the railroad have promised to build us a reading room next spring near McEnroe's saloon. Consequently we are trying to enlist the sympathy and co-operation of every citizen in East Sedalia in this grand work of doing all in our power to elevate mankind. To this end we would make this enterprise a decided success."

When Miss Jennie Smith was here last fall she organized a Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and two weeks since we organized a Band of Hope for the school children, and both organizations are in a very promising condition. May God's blessing crown all our efforts to elevate and save mankind, for "In God we trust."

E. G.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead, Who never to himself hath said: "What is there here to conquer pain?" And thereupon his words recoil And answer, buy St. Jacobs Oil.

Dyer Dungeoned.

A telegram from Moberly yesterday stated that Sheriff Wallace had arrived safely at Moberly with Dee Dyer, and that there was no danger whatever of a mob interfering with him in fact public opinion is somewhat divided as to whether he really merits any severe punishment on account of the unfortunate affair. Dyer was yesterday taken to Maryville and lodged in jail to await the meeting of the March term of court. Wm. Joslyn, who recently shot his wife is also in the Maryville jail and seems to take matters very easy. At last accounts his wife was in a fair way to recover, but the deliberateness of his attempt to commit murder, is certain to insure him a long term of imprisonment should she live and to hang him should she die.

A Rare Gift.

John Baker, foreman of the Missouri Pacific, was the recipient yesterday of a beautiful gold locket watch chain of rare workmanship and design. It is of Chinese make, and was sent to him by J. A. Radcliffe, a missionary to Tonquin. It is needless to say John is very proud of the gift and prizes it highly.
